The Numbers of State Warrants That Will Not be Paid.

The State Treasurer Makes a Statement About Them.

Mr. Gladstone's Amendment Rejected in the Commons.

The Lengthy Debate on it Closed and the Vote Taken

Warrants That Will Not be Paid.

DENVER, March 10 State Treasurer Brisbane has issued a call for state warrants 20868 to 21067 inclusive. He then states that owing to an official opinion rendered by the attorney general, the validity of the following numbered warrants is called in question and that he will not pay them, to wit: 20868, 20869, 20871, 20873, 20874, 20875, 20876, 20877, 20881, 20882, 20883, 20884, 20888, 20891, 20893, 20898, 20903, 20906, 20908, 20913, 20915, 20916, 20917, 20923, 20926, 20927, 20928, 20929, 20930, 20933, 20936, 20937, 20940, 20942, 20945, 20947, 20948, 20953, 20982, 20985, 20991, 21008, 21026, 21027.

Brisbane says he was notified by the attorney general that these warrants are of questionable validity and should not be paid. This is the opinion not of the attorney general alone, for it also is that of Judges Dixon and Wells. These warrants were issued by the last general Assembly to employes employed under a resolution. This is in accordance with a statute that says they may be so employed. But this by the legal authority quoted is held to be in opposition to a constitutional clause that provides they shall be employed only by the authority of the law. The question thus raised is one of constitutional validity.

The warrants are noted in order that holders may take such action concerning them as they may be advised. The holders of these warrants it is said will institute mandamus proceedings to compel the payment.

Gladstone's Amendment Rejected.

LONDON, March 10. In the commons to-night the debate on the Parnell report was resumed, and Sexton protested against the placing on record of the commission's purveyed views of the evidence submitted to them. In the course of his speech he said he had a letter marked "private" from Lord Salisbury to Pigott.

Balfour declared that viler calumny had never been uttered than the insinuation that Lord Salisbury was connected with the forgeries. He had the prime minister's authority to challenge Sexton to publish the letter and dared him to read it.

Sexton retorted that he was ready to [illegible] the letter, and others with it, to a committee of inquiry.

Balfour, continuing, denied that the government assisted the Times to procure evidence in America. He accused the Parnellites of withholding from the commission every source of authentic evidence. The government made no charges against the Parnellites and he failed to see why the government ought to apologize. Parnell, himself was largely responsible for the effect of the publications, because had the Parnellites adequately denounced the Phoenix Park murders nobody would have discredited the leaders. He concluded with a general attack on the Parnellites.

Sir Wm Harcourt maintained that the forged letters helped the government to pass the crimes act. The country had become weary of the debate because it regarded the government's action against the acquitted men as vindictive. After denying the authority of the judges on political questions he asked what the government hoped to reap from this shabby persecution.

At the conclusion of the debate Gladstone's amendment was rejected, 339 to [illegible]. Jennings' amendment will be taken up to-morrow.

Killed in a Snow Slide.

DENVER, March 10. A Leadville special to the Times says: Thomas Gowdy was instantly killed and Robert Cedargren narrowly escaped death early this morning. The men started to this city this morning with a four-horse team. When they reached the place where the snow slide occurred on Friday night they unhitched the leaders and Gowdy started across the slide to break a road. Cedargren followed a few feet behind him. When they had gone a short distance a rumbling noise was heard, and looking upward they saw the whole side of the hill coming toward them. It was impossible to turn back, and before they decided what to do the avalanche of snow struck them with terrific force, sweeping everything before it. Cedargren was carried down the hill a distance of 100 feet, escaping without a scratch. Extricating himself he looked around for Gowdy but the latter could not be seen anywhere and he concluded he had been killed.

About half a mile from where the slide took place two miners, Bohm and Cohn, were working a lease. Cedargren hastened to them and the three men returned with shovels. It so happened that the unfortunate victim had a dog that was much attached to him and the thought occurred to the men that it would be a good idea to get the dog to assist them in locating the remains. The animal, seemingly knowing what was wanted, began to sniff the snow and in a very short time found the place where his master was entombed. The men shoveled away the snow and at a depth of two feet found the body.

Gowdy was found with his head downwards toward the gulch. He was suffocated. There was a slight scar on his right temple from a blow which no doubt stunned him, and as he was drawn within the grasp of the snow before recovering consciousness he was smothered. The horses had a narrow escape, and were saved by standing behind a boulder which split the slide and allowed it to pass on each side of the animals.

The Windom Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 10. The house committee on coinage, weights and measures again to-day had under consideration the Windom silver bill and informally passed upon it. Four members of the committee were absent. A number of amendments were offered but only two were adopted. One was the addition of a provision to section 5. This section makes it the duty of the secretary of the treasury to refuse deposits of silver when the market price shall exceed one dollar for 371 25 grains of pure silver. The amendment provides for the free coinage of silver whenever the price of silver reaches the price mentioned above. An amendment was added to section 2 providing that nothing in the act shall be construed to change the legal tender qualities of the standard silver dollar. Final action on the bill was postponed until Monday.

The Fair Bill

WASHINGTON, March 10. The subcommittee on the world's fair held another conference with the visiting Chicago delegation to day. The completed report will be presented to the full committee as soon as the chairman can call it together. A few changes have been made. The provision for a national commission composed of two members from each state to be nominated by the governors and appointed by the president is retained but an amendment is added providing that the commissioners be divided equally between the two political parties. These government commissioners are to have control of the operations of the fair, the appointment of juries, the distribution of awards, etc., but the Illinois corporation is to prepare the site, construct the buildings and retain control of the financial affairs. The president is not to appoint the commissioners until Chicago has raised $5,000,000 and given satisfactory assurance of its ability to supply another $5,000,000 if needed.

A Lively Election.

BIDDEFORD, Me., March 10. There was great excitement here over the municipal election to day. One hundred special police and twenty five deputy sheriffs were on duty. The votes of the men whose naturalization papers were issued by the municipal court in alleged violation of the law were being challenged and special officers were working in sympathy with the men. In one ward two deputy sheriffs arrested a challenged voter, but a special officer and a crowd liberated the prisoner. In another ward Deputy United States Marshal Stackpole drew a revolver when the crowd interfered with his arrest of a prisoner. Stackpole succeeded in holding his man and also caused the arrest of the special officer who interfered. Warrants were issued for the arrest of a deputy sheriff and ten minutes later the local police captured Deputy Stackpole and Deputy Sheriff Parker, of North Berwick, and hustled them to the police station followed by a mob. The commotion resulted in a complete victory for the democrats.

High Water in the Mississippi.

ST. LOUIS, March 10. Reports from the lower Mississippi river are to the effect that the water has become alarmingly high all along. The levees are breaking at various places. There is great apprehension that a large section of country on both sides of the river will be inundated. The latest report is that the levee at Sappinton Hoop, six miles above Arkansas City, Ark., broke yesterday afternoon. The whole river front from Crevasse to the Louisiana line will be flooded. The whole of Tansas basin, of Louisiana, consisting of four of five parishes will undoubtedly be covered by water. The river at Arkansas City is above high water mark and still rising. The present outlook is for at least a foot more water. It is thought there will be heavy loss from the water.

A Mob Repulsed.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 10. A mob of several hundred men procured a small cannon and rode into the town of Spartansburg to-day for the avowed purpose of attacking the jail and taking therefrom and lynching George Sturnon, who shot and killed his brother-in-law, Edward Fisher, on Friday. When the mob arrived at the public square, Mayor Henneman appeared at the head of the police force and, with pistol in hand, repulsed the mob, spiked the cannon and locked it up. After making further hostile demonstrations the would-be lynchers dispersed.

A NEW WARD CREATED.

West Colorado Springs Admitted Into the City.

A Ward Created From Territory West of the Monument.

Very Little Opposition to the Movement in the Council.

A Number of Minor Matters Considered and Acted Upon.

There were present at the city council meeting last night the mayor and all councilmen.

The first petition presented was from the Colorado Springs Hotel company asking that the council make the corners of the land on which the Antlers hotel is situated square. According to the prayer of the petitioners the land, as it faces on Cascade avenue, is rounded at the corners, and the plans for the addition require that it should be square. There was some discussion in regard to the matter, but an ordinance was introduced and passed complying with the request. All members voted aye.

A petition from J. A. Himebaugh and E. J. Eaton was read, asking that they be permitted to connect a 3-inch main with the city's main in Goshen's addition, the purpose being to supply the Washington Heights addition with water. The matter was referred to the water committee with power to act.

The drain layers and plumbers' bonds of W. H. D. Merrill were presented and accepted. The bonds are for $1000 in each case, and W. H D. Merrill, E J. Smith, Thomas Ord and S. E. Sessions are the sureties.

Mayor Stillman reported that the water suits of Donovan vs. the city had been compromised; that the city pays Mrs Donovan $200 and she to pay the costs.

Alderman Stubbs stated that all the committees are not yet ready to report, and the appropriation ordinance could not be introduced until the next meeting.

Two ordinances were amended by request of the committee now at work revising the ordinances. The side walk ordinance was amended re-numbering the sections and articles. The nuisance ordinance was amended, inserting a clause restricting the scattering of hand bills, dodgers, etc.

The council began the discussion of the matter of admitting West Colorado Springs as a part of the city and of creating a fifth ward. The discussion was too general to permit of a detailed statement of any length, and the proceedings more in the nature of a committee of the whole than a formal meeting. Mr. H. G. Lunt, as attorney for the residents of the city west of the Monument creek, presented the papers in the case with a few words of explanation. They included a plat of West Colorado Springs and its addition, a map showing the topography of the land as to bluffs, ditches, etc.; a certificate from the officers of the West Colorado Springs company and the Colorado Springs real estate company to the effect that they own two-thirds of the property, etc., a certificate from the county treasurer that the taxes on the land are paid; a certificate of the city engineer as to the width and course of the streets and alleys; a certificate from the El Paso abstract company as to the title to the land.

City Attorney Peltz explained the difficulty of making a plot of the land so located according to the laws of the state regulating such matters. He thought this law very imperfect, but after several hours' work Mr. Lunt and the speaker had decided that the plat is as nearly perfect as it can be made. Mr. Lunt outlined the course that should be pursued if the council went to work to admit the addition through the courts. He thought it an undesirable, tedious and expensive process.

A great deal of discussion followed as to whether a fifth ward should be created after the land was accepted. It was the general impression that to admit the land and not create the ward would not be keeping faith with the residents of the section.

Mr. Gillingham led in the debate, championing the cause of the west siders. He made a speech of some length, outlining the benefits to be derived, and what might be lost by inaction.

Mr. Peltz thought it might be advisable to adjourn for one evening that more of the west-siders might be present. Mr. Rudy, chairman of the committee from West Colorado Springs which had the matter in hand, stated that the desire for annexation was practically unanimous as was also the wish to have a new ward. Mr. Sprague thought a better expression of sentiment could not be had than the petition.

Alderman Gillingham moved that the plat be accepted.

Alderman Lawton moved as a substitute that it be the sense of the council that the prayer of the petitioners be granted and the plat accepted. Some discussion followed and there being some confusion in the minds of the members as to how they were voting, both motion and substitute were withdrawn.

Alderman Sprague moved that it be the sense of the committee that if the plat is accepted that a fifth ward be created. The roll was called and all voted "aye" but Aldermen Stubbs and J. P. Barnes.

Alderman Gillingham moved that the plat of West Colorado Springs be adopted as a ward of the city. Upon the roll call all members voted aye. The ordinance creating a fifth ward was then read, as follows:

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Colorado Springs:

That an ordinance dividing the city into wards, passed July 20, 1885, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 1. The division of the city into wards, and the boundaries thereof, shall be as follows, to wit:

All that portion of said city lying [illegible] of the center line of Monument creek and west of the center line of Nevada avenue, and north of a line running west from the center line of Nevada avenue along the center line of Pike's Peak avenue to the center line of Cascade avenue, thence south along the center line of Cascade avenue to the center line of Huerfano street; thence west along the center line of said street to the center line of Monument creek, together with Roswell City addition to the city of Colorado Springs, shall be designated and known as the First ward.

All that portion of said city lying north of the center line of Pike's Peak avenue and a line running east therefrom in continuation thereof, and east of the center line of Nevada avenue and the First ward, shall be designated and known as the Second ward.

All that portion of said city lying south of the center line of Pike's Peak avenue, and a line running east therefrom in continuation thereof, and east of the center line of Nevada avenue and a line running south therefrom in continuation thereof, shall be designated and known as the Third ward.

All that portion of the city lying east of the center line of Monument creek and east of the center of Fontaine Qui Bouille creek, south of its confluence with Monument creek, and west of the center line of Nevada avenue, and south of a line running west from the center line of Nevada avenue along the center line of Pike's Peak avenue to the center line of Cascade avenue, thence south along the center line of Cascade avenue to the center line of Huerfano street; thence west along the center line of said street to the center of Monument creek, shall be designated and known as the Fourth ward.

All that portion of the city lying west of the center line of Monument creek and of Fontaine Qui Bouille creek south of its confluence with Monument creek, except Roswell City addition to the city of Colorado Springs, shall be designated and known as the Fifth ward.

SEC 2. All ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

The rules were suspended and the ordinance passed, all members voting for it excepting J. P. Barnes.

The water committee reported in favor of allowing the Bellevue Sanitarium society's bill for the construction of certain water pipe leading up to the institution. Upon motion the council decided to allow for 247 feet at 40 cents per foot.

The council then adjourned.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 10. Among the bills reported and placed on the calendar was one for the construction of postoffice buildings in towns and cities where the postoffice receipts have for the last three years exceeded $3,000 a year.

A bill fixing the times and places for holding the United States court in the state of Washington was passed.

Other public building bills reported and placed on the calendar are as follows: Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane Falls, $100,000, and Walla Walla $30,000.

Stanford offered a preamble and resolution instructing the committee on finance to inquire what relief for the existing agricultural depression may be furnished by the United States and particularly whether loans may not be made by the government on mortgages on real estate, independent of improvements, at such rates and to such amounts as will make the security to the government perfect; the government to receive some small rate of interest (1 to 2 per cent) and to be able to call in percentages of the loans from time to time at its discretion. He submitted some remarks in support of the resolution. It was referred to the committee on finance.

Plumb offered a resolution which was agreed to, calling on the secretary of the interior for a statement as to the cause of withholding patents for lands within the limits of the Union Pacific land grants.

The bill appropriating $500,000 for a public building at Salt Lake City, Utah, was passed.

On motion of Sherman the bill providing for the inspection of meats for exportation and prohibiting the importation of adulterated articles of food or drink and authorizing the president to make a proclamation in certain cases, was taken from the calendar.

After considerable debate the bill was laid aside without action and the educational bill was taken up once more.

Higgins addressed the senate in advocacy of the bill.

Jones, of Arkansas, followed Higgins. He said the legislature of his state had instructed her senators to vote against the bill and he should obey those instructions.

At the close of Jones' speech the senate proceeded to vote on amendments proposed by the committee and they were severally agreed to. The bill was then laid aside and after executive session the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

The senate resolution was concurred in, providing that the senate and house committees on immigration jointly investigate the working of the various laws of the United States and the several states relative to immigration. The resolution was amended to direct the joint committee to investigate the effect on American workingmen likely to follow the purchase of American industries by foreign capitalists.

The floor was then accorded to the committee on the District of Columbia.

The district business having been completed the senate bill was passed for taking the census in Alaska.

The senate bill was passed to prevent the introduction of contagious diseases from one state to another.

The bill was passed authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Columbia river between Oregon and Washington.

Lacey, of Iowa, from the committee on elections, reported a resolution for the appointment of a sub committee to make a full and thorough investigation of the contested election case of Clayton vs. Breckinridge. Lacey at the request of Breckinridge offered an amendment directing the sub committee to investigate all the events relating to the contest or arising therefrom after the election. It was agreed to after some debate and the resolution was then adopted.

The house then went into committee of the whole on the Oklahoma territory bill. Without making much progress the committee rose and the house adjourned.

Nomination Cancelled

LONDON, March 10. Under the name and title of Roger Doughty Tichbourne, Baronet Arthur Orton Tichbourne was nominated as the home rule candidate for Stoke-on-Trent, to fill the seat in the commons made vacant by the resignation of William L. Bright, home ruler. He failed, however, to deposit his share of the election expenses and the nomination has been cancelled.

The Verdict Not Accepted.

DENVER, March 10. The jury in the Lynch murder case, which went out Saturday night, came in to day with a verdict of manslaughter. When the attorney for the defense asked that the jury be polled all said this was their verdict except G. M. Allen, who said he had been importuned into giving it. Judge Graham immediately sent the jury out again.

E. W. STEELE,
Manager of the Gazette.

There were two elections last week in England. In one the tory majority of [2]31 was turned into a home rule majority of 108. This was at North St. Pancras. On Saturday Stamford which gave a tory majority of 1100 in 1886 now gives a tory majority of 232. The Times expresses no disappointment at the result, as it says "There is a tendency in by elections to go against the government."

The public letter of Governor Cooper to Senator Hill was in every way an unfortunate mistake. It was hardly paying proper regard to the dignity of the office to address this public letter to a private individual. If the purpose had been to secure an explanation from Senator Hill, the only proper course was to have addressed a private and personal letter. But to address a public letter which is practically an official document to a private citizen is an extreme course which the circumstances hardly justified. The statement given on the first of March was in every way a better one and convinced the people of the state of Governor Cooper's good faith in the matter of the state lands. It was addressed very properly to his fellow officials and this should have ended the matter, unless he had requested an investigation. All that is said in his defense in the last letter could have been said in a different way with very much greater effect.

A week ago Mr. Black presented the claims of the public reading room to the city council, and asked for the modest sum of five hundred dollars. This is an appropriation entirely proper for the city to make. This institution has been supported thus far by private subscriptions, but during the present year there have been so many solicitations for various good and worthy objects that it has been found difficult to get money to support this reading room. It now has a large number of books which may be considered a nucleus of a public library. The rooms are used by a large number and the institution has established its position as a useful one. Other cities appropriate large amounts annually for the support of a public library system. This city ought not to be behind. At present we have so much to do, with the city developing as fast as it is, that we cannot give an amount sufficient to support a very good library, but it is well to make a start and this appropriation will be sufficient to provide an excellent reading room. Already many of our citizens are interested in this library and make frequent contributions of books. The Rev. J. S. Black and the Rev. J. B. Gregg, with others, have already done all the community has a right to expect of them in support of this institution. The time has come when the city itself should do something.

There is a bill now before congress proposing to raise the salaries of United States district judges from three thousand five hundred and four thousand dollars to five thousand dollars. It goes without saying that no good lawyer can afford to take the position unless he has a private fortune. Eight thousand dollars would be little enough salary for any of the district judges, while our supreme court judges ought to receive instead of ten not less than fifteen thousand dollars. It is quite true that it is possible to find enough judges to serve at the salary now given, but in a republican form of government it is hardly right to fix the salary so that it restricts the selection to a few men. Probably no district judge or member of the supreme court in the country lives within his salary if he has a family. A New York paper gives the case of Judge LaCombe, who gave up his salary as corporation counsel of twelve thousand dollars to accept a position as district judge at four thousand dollars a year. This he did because he understood that the salary would be raised. A judge in any United States court should be the equal intellectually and also in the knowledge of law of any of the practitioners, yet no man with a family could live properly in New York on a salary of four thousand dollars a year. This simply means that we can only select our United States judges from those who are rich. For unless a man is rich he can hardly for honor's sake give up a practice of from ten to twenty five thousand to accept a four thousand position.

Nothing that has occurred in the religious world for a long time has made the impression that the Lenten lectures of Phillips Brooks have. The newspapers all over the country are discussing them. It is rather lamentable, but nevertheless a stubborn fact, that the business men and professional men do not go to church as much as they used to. Church congregations now consist more largely of women and children. That the business men of New York, whose quest for the "almighty dollar" is so earnest, should go in the middle of a working day to hear a sermon is justly considered remarkable. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat thinks that this is "an illustration of the fact that the pulpit has itself to blame for the most part that so many intelligent and influential members of society are rarely or never present at church services." The observation is not altogether an unjust one. The old notion used to prevail that men who were "called" should preach, but unfortunately most of the men so called were very inferior intellectually. The [illegible] who have looked at the [illegible] of students assisted by the education [illegible] have wondered why certain men were helped to get an education to preach. They certainly could not make a success in any other profession. It is quite true that the Lord frequently uses the weak to confound the mighty, but this is not exactly so in the case of the ministry. If the educational societies were to use only two tests, we would have a ministry that would command much more respect. The two tests should be simply spirituality of life and high standing in the class room. Most of the young men who are "called" to preach do not possess either one of these two qualifications. Phillips Brooks' strength lies in the fact that he is a man of God and of sufficiently strong intellect to be able to preach of simple things in a simple way. We have heard of a minister who was surprised that a certain sermon was very much praised. He called it one of his poorest because it was one of his simplest. The simple sermons containing common sense, full of broad sympathies and broad views of life, are what the popular mind craves, and those who preach such sermons always have audiences and are always doing good.

The suggestion, made by the president of the board of trade and repeated on several occasions in these columns that those citizens who have any influence which it is possible to exert, either directly or indirectly, with members of congress, should do so for the benefit of the public building bill, has been carried into effect in several cases with good results. Mr. P. A. McCurdy recently wrote to Congressman Walker, of Massachusetts, on the subject and has received a reply promising the bill his support when it comes up in the house. Mr. Walker is an influential member and his support will be valuable. There are no doubt many other members of congress who can be reached in a similar way and now is the time to do it. The appropriation asked for is so reasonable and the bill such a just one that if it is presented to those who will vote on it in its true light the bill will pass at this session. The difficulty, if there is any, is not that we lack any strength as to the merits of the case, it lies in the fact that we may possibly not be able to get those merits properly before the members of congress. Any person who can assist in this should do so.

Many of our readers know that Mr. N. S. Mellen, formerly of this city, is a member of the firm of Mellen & Kirby, architects, New York. Mr. Mellen has made a special study of building material and the practical work. Mr. Kirby is the draughtsman of the firm and has made a reputation for himself as one of the leading draughtsmen in this country. At the sixtieth annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, held this year, he submitted some of his drawings, which obtained the following notice from the American Architect and Building News:

The most important exceptions to this rule are the twenty inimitable drawings by Mr. H. P. Kirby, several of which were in the League exhibition. A note in the catalogue tells us that Mr. Kirby's drawings "are here for a limited time, through the courtesy of the artist and of the Boston Architectural club, a private exhibition already arranged by the club for Mr. Kirby having been postponed in order that the drawings might be shown here." Unlike the pen-and-ink work of a good many well known draughtsmen, these superb examples command more admiration in the original than in any reproduction; the line is as firm as true, and as delightfully free when it wanders over a square yard of paper as when it is confined within the boundaries of a quarto volume. If we cull out the least characteristic pieces, the studies for a cottage and a gate-lodge, and perhaps the interior sketches, it is hard to tell which of the others attract us most. There is the noble drawing called a "Study for a Country House," the less imaginative, but still fascinating country house with its arch over the roadway on the left, the seaside house, the sketch (in brown ink) for a club house possibly this is the best of all, although without any dominating mass which would have helped it as a composition—this rambling club house, partly Gothic, partly Renaissance is altogether delightful. Then there is the well known sketch of a country tavern and the study for a hotel in Colorado, a design in French Renaissance for a building that if it exists must make an architect think twice before going to France in search of picturesqueness. One wonders to what use the ill-lighted rooms in the round towers will be put and the front door strikes certain fault-finding people as not being conspicuous enough; but small entrance doors and large chimneys are characteristics of Mr. Kirby's designs, and in the presence of drawings like these one ought not to feel hypercritical.

All the drawings are admirable, the sketch of St. Tyler, the clearly drawn corner in Bayeux, the mass of rich detail in the study for the tower of the court house and jail, and the fascinating compositions and views in imaginary French towns. One feels the strongest desire to see the whole of the church whose spire is the feature of one of the sketches, and in another to know what may be hidden behind the half-timbered gables above which looms the noble tower of a rich cathedral.

From the numbers of draughtsmen who have been seen apparently taking mental notes from these drawings, it seems as though Mr. Kirby might have many imitators, and the next exhibition may contain as many pen-and-inks after the manner of Kirby, as there are generally to be found of water colors after the manner of Luce.

The same journal, speaking of the exhibition of some of his drawings at the Cincinnati exhibition in the fall, says:

Mr. Kirby's drawings are always satisfying in their boldness and virility, and when there is added to these qualities the interest, that usually lies in his designs, the visitor to an exhibition where his drawings are hung finds it difficult to move away from the wall which they decorate. It is generally supposed that these large and fine "bits" are mere phantasies conceived in an idle moment, and worked up solely in perspective, but it is often the case that they are the perspectives after carefully-studied working drawings which have been conscientiously worked out, for practice or for actual use. This was the case with the large drawing of a cathedral apse [No. 28], a study for the design submitted in the competition for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine by the firm of which he is a member, and the same may be said of No. 25, a "Study for a Hotel in Colorado." It was particularly pleasing to see this drawing, for it seemed a token that, at last, Mr. Kirby was to have a chance to worthily carry into execution some of his architectural ideas which he has been obliged hitherto to bring forward merely as studies.

We are glad to state that our readers will have an opportunity to see some of Mr. Kirby's work in a Colorado building.

THE MISSOURI CRUSADE.

SOME WOMEN OF LATHROP, MO, WRECK TWO SALOONS.

Clinton County Has Had a Long and Hard Fight on the License Question—The Temperance People Have Won, but the Sale of Whisky Went on Just the Same.

The western women's war on whisky has broken out again, this time in Lathrop, Mo., and in a rather violent form. It is now sixteen years and a few weeks since the nation learned that the women of several small cities in Ohio, notably Washington Court House, Hillsborough, Greenville and Vienna, had organized a crusade of song and prayer against the saloons and with amazing success. Their enthusiasm was contagious. It seemed as if the people had been longing and waiting for some new and radical mode of attack, and in a fortnight all Ohio and parts of the adjacent states were on fire.

MISS LOTO KELSAY.
MRS. BROOKS. MRS. CARMICHAEL.
JOHN A. CROSS.

The plan was simple. The ladies of a small city or village formed in bands, took up position at the door of a saloon and sang and prayed till the proprietor yielded or capitulated. Every leading newspaper in the state soon had its correspondent describing the work. The noted lecturer on hygiene, Dr. Dio Lewis, with his once notorious convert, John Calvin Van Pelt, traversed the state, organizing the crusade. The public streets of almost every place resounded with song and prayer, and at the end of two months the central committee announced that they had closed 1,700 saloons and had 1,000 more "under conviction." Then came the inevitable reaction—the dying out of enthusiasm, the reopening of saloons, including that kept by the notorious Van Pelt, who, by the way, soon after got a five years' sentence to the Missouri state's prison for stealing a pair of gears), the regular war over license, and then the Murphy movement.

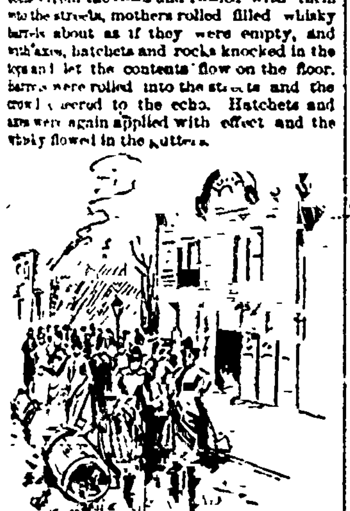

The W. C. T. U. came next, and in due time split on the rock of politics, and now the ladies are devising some new scheme against King Alcohol. Lathrop has had the common experience. For a long time there was no licensed saloon in the place, but there was a "drug store," with all that the quotation marks indicate, the temperance people made the usual fight, scored the usual failure, and explained it by the usual charge—that the officials had winked at the violation of the law. The real reason was, as in so many failures in laws aimed at social customs, the impossibility of finding witnesses who could "remember." No other drug of man's invention produces such oblivion of memory as whisky.

The ladies then took the matter in hand, and eighty-five signed a pledge to exterminate liquor selling in Lathrop. By this time there were two saloons. Late in January Abe Scruggs stabbed John L. Brooks both [illegible]. Mrs. Brooks appealed to the women and declared that if one would help her she would smash the saloon. She got help. On said afternoon they appeared on the main street, their line of march directed on Thomas Ward's saloon. He bolted and locked the door, imprisoning some dozen men who had been interested in a game of billiards. On the opposite side of the street a large crowd had gathered. The maple trees there were full of spectators.

"Break in!" shouted one of them. A lady, it was not reported, dashed in the glass window, and, thrusting in her hand, unlocked the door.

The pouring after through the gaping space,
Line of women flows and fills the place;
The drinkers behold, they tremble and they fly,
The floor is splashed with rum, and tumult rends the sky.

No, it wasn't quite so Homeric as that, but it was exciting. The sight of the beer bottles and whisky barrels incited the women to renewed action. Pretty mothers gathered beer bottles from the cases and rushed with them into the streets, mothers rolled filled whisky barrels about as if they were empty, and with axes, hatchets and rocks knocked in the heads and let the contents flow on the floor. Barrels were rolled into the streets and the crowd cheered to the echo. Hatchets and axes were again applied with effect and the whisky flowed in the gutters.

CRUSADERS IN FRONT OF WARD'S.

Street gamins with cups and men with buckets attempted to save part of it as it flowed in the street, but a thoughtful member of the W. C. T. U. had found a barrel of salt and scattered it in the torrent.

A happy thought seized the town photographer. He rushed down with his lightning camera, got his focus and pictured the crowd and scene just as Mrs. Brooks was raising the ax over her second barrel.

"Be careful, Mrs. Brooks, or you will kill yourself," cried out some one in the crowd.

"Thank God that I will die in a good cause," was the rejoinder.

Mr. Ward at first expostulated, then sarcastically invited the ladies to "call again!" They did, that same day, and destroyed four more barrels which they had missed, as those were behind the saloon. At A. J. Carroll's, near by, they spilled all the whisky, but there was much less of it. They then visited and warned the druggists in town not to sell any more whisky. Next day the ladies held a meeting and resolved to carry the war into Plattsburg, county seat of the county (Clinton), whenever the ladies of that place agreed to join them, and then trouble came, for the crusaded saloonatics appealed to the law. It appeared very soon that the town was badly divided, and many ladies active in temperance work refused to endorse the new movement.

The crusaders include the wives of every minister but one, the wives of Postmaster Boring and J. F. Parshall, the town marshal; the wife of Charles E. Jones, cashier of the Lathrop bank, and Mmes. J. L. Brooks, H. L. Freeman, E. G. Kinney and several others, including several young ladies. Of these Miss Loto Kelsay is pointed out as the champion bottle smasher, credited or debited with having broken a hundred bottles of beer. As far as an outsider can judge, those who crusaded and those who declined are of about equal social standing. If that cuts any figure in a temperance war.

The county court has refused license unless the saloonatic could get a majority of property owners in the town to sign his petition; so there have been no licenses in Lathrop for many years, but the saloons opened all the same. Now as criminal suits have been brought against the ladies and civil suits against some of their husbands for damages, the old question of "setting up one set against another" will come up.

News Gathering in America.

The role of the American press in the growth of journalism has been distinctly the development of news gathering as a business, leaving to the work of comment only a subordinate place, and, in fact, one might say a comparatively insignificant one. In American news, too, the field in which news may be found has been greatly enlarged; a much larger class of facts is drawn on for letters and dispatches. News in the journalistic sense has never been clearly defined. Taken literally, news is everything that a man has not already heard; but no journal undertakes to supply him with news of this sort. The line has to be drawn somewhere between news which may be usefully and legitimately served up to him on his breakfast table and news which would either do him no good or to which he has no fair claim.

When enterprise and business competition are allowed to trace this line without the control of either law or morality, it is sure to have as many zigzags in it as there are journals, and it is equally sure that the commercial result will largely determine the question of legitimacy in the public eye. In a commercial country it is inevitable that the acquisition of money should be the generally recognized, as it is the most easily recognized, sign of success. As a consequence of this, the modes of acquiring it which only offend against taste or discretion, and are not legally criminal, are treated with considerable indulgence, or even, in some cases, call forth admiration. Nothing is more unreasonable, in truth, than the impatience of the American public with the excesses of the news gathering department of American journalism, considering the enormous rewards in money and in social consideration which it pays and has paid to those who work this field with least regard to the conventions.—E. L. Godkin in North American Review.

Discourse at City Hall.

By the courtesy of the officials, which was duly acknowledged on Sunday morning, Rev. Samuel B Barnitz of the board of Lutheran home mission, preached at the city hall to a fine audience indeed, so large in numbers and the interest so great that the secretary himself was agreeably surprised, and greatly gratified. Reading from the book of worship opened the services, followed by familiar hymns to old time tunes, Miss Barber presiding at the organ and Miss Stair leading in the soprano. The discourse of Mr. Barnitz was a very logical and yet very plain one, on "The Superiority of Faith over Unbelief." The close attention paid the speaker showed that from the opening to the closing sentence he had his audience deeply impressed. At the close of the sermon the secretary stated the object of his visit to Colorado Springs, and his gratification at the prospects for establishing an English Lutheran congregation. Hand-shaking and greetings were numerous, and the congregation separated with gratitude that they had come together in so delightful a service. Mr. Barnitz visited the various Sunday schools in the afternoon, delivering an address at the Baptist school and going thence to the Young Men's Christian association meeting. During his stay in the city he was the guest of Mr. Ward Barber, Hon. Irving Howbert and the Messrs. Francis of the Pike's Peak Herald. All who heard Mr. Barnitz expressed a desire for an early renewal of the visit.

"I Love

Tomatoes, but can not eat them; they disagree with me." So we heard a person say lately. It was, perhaps, the seeds in the tomatoes gave the trouble. Our "Seedless Tomatoes" can be eaten by many who can not eat them as usually canned. Try them for soup, too, and you will wonder how you ever did without them Your grocer has them.

NEWSPAPER ARCHIVE®

THE GAZETTE.

TUESDAY, MARCH 11, 1890.

Thomas B Reeves filed his notarial bond yesterday

Mrs. Theo. Corrick has returned from a visit of several months in the east.

The banquet to have been given by the Crowell hose company this evening has been postponed.

The street and ditch committee of the city council has begun the work of cleaning the irrigating ditches.

A pauper from Colorado City, whose name is supposed to be Wm. Cooper, died at the county poor house Saturday

Mellen & Wright yesterday sold two lots in West Colorado Springs, also a 120 acre tract of land south of town A gentleman from Illinois was the purchaser.

Reserved seats are now on sale for the engagement of James O'Neill in "Monte Cristo," at popular prices He will appear at the opera house Friday evening.

The drawing for the acre of land given by the Broadmoor Dairy company occurred yesterday. No 130 drew the land, and was held by Mr John A. Sprague

The congregation of the First Presbyterian church was compelled to worship in the lecture room Sunday evening owing to the sudden extinguishment of the electric lights.

Beginning to day and lasting for two days an exhibition of elegant bric a brac from England will be given at the Antlers. Attention is called to the advertisement in another column

The members of the B F. Crowell Hose company are requested to meet at the company's rooms at 2 o'clock this afternoon to attend the funeral of their late comrade, Will H. Wilson

Fire alarm box No 42 is now in position at the corner of Kiowa street and Wahsatch avenue and is ready for business. Small cards containing a list of the boxes, their location and directions for turning in alarms have been issued in sufficient numbers to give every citizen one

Rice's Evangeline was the attraction at the opera house last night The company producing it was the best yet seen in this city in the familiar old play It was produced with the best possible stage effects Geo Fortescue is still the great attraction of the play, with Maffitt as the lone fisherman The music and dancing was fair

The second annual meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign missionary society of Pueblo will be held in the First Presbyterian church, this city, on Thursday, March 20, beginning at 10 a m An excellent program has been arranged, ladies of the presbytery who are interested in the work having prepared papers on subjects connected with the boards mentioned.

Tickets for the song recital by Mrs Emma Hodge of Chicago are now for sale at the Consolidated book store, seventy five cents each Mrs. Hodge is a contralto of rare merit and is assisted by Miss Fairlicher, a pianist always enjoyed by our Colorado Springs audiences This concert is given for the benefit of the girls' hall of the college, and it is hoped that all friends of this institution will endeavor to be present

Dr. Gunsaulus' lecture on Savonarola next Friday evening at the Congregational church will be the finest lecture heard in this city for many months Those who have heard this lecturer say that if this were his second appearance in the city, no hall it contains would hold the audience he would command. The tickets have been put at the low price of fifty cents each and are for sale at the Consolidated book store.

Jailer Atkinson was sitting in his room at the county jail on Sunday evening about 5 o'clock when he heard a report like a revolver shot. Going into the jail he discovered that a bar in the cage had been broken by the prisoners in an attempt to escape, and he summoned assistance There were ten of the prisoners in the cage and they were locked up and searched A small pocket knife was found which had been converted into a saw. It was found that one of the bars had been broken by prying with a piece of pine scantling, two by four inches in size. The scantling had evidently been fished from the outside by one of the "trusties" by means of a string and two old brooms lashed together. The iron had snapped like a piece of wood. It was evidently the intention of the prisoners to get into the lobby and overpower the jailer when he came to lock them in for the night. It was very fortunate that Mr Atkinson heard them at work

The announcement of the death of Will H. Wilson, which occurred yesterday morning, will cause sorrow to many persons in this city. Mr. Wilson was among the best known young men in this city, having been raised here from childhood. He was born near Clarksville, Mo., October 16, 1865, but came with his parents to this city in 1872 When about 18 years of age he entered the employ of Mr Edward Ferris in his dry goods store, and later was with the Messrs Giddings Bros., so that his acquaintance was large Three years ago Mr Wilson was a fine specimen of physical manhood, and was prominent in all athletic sports During the summer of 1887 he trained with the running team of the B F. Crowell hose company and was among the fleetest runners that participated in the races on July 4 of that year. It was but a short time after that event when his health became broken and his decline has been gradual since Will Wilson was of a bright, genial disposition and by his happy, friendly ways endeared himself to all who knew him. During many months of suffering he bore up with wonderful heroism and resolution The funeral will occur from the family residence this afternoon at 2 30 o'clock, and all friends are invited.

Jas. O'Neill.

Mr. James O'Neill's impersonation of the title role in "Monte Cristo" is one of most impressive and powerful characterizations to be seen on the American stage. He will appear at the opera house next Friday evening, supported by a very strong company and the play will be given with special scenery. An example is Mr. O'Neill kept his hearers spellbound in any theatre the entire evening as a sailor boy, afterward the miserable prisoner of 18 years, and then as the cool and determined possessor of the treasure of Monte Cristo with vengeance his only aim The naturalness of his calm demeanor, or the outbursts of his passion caught the audience and swayed it from admiration to awe. His interpretation of the character is truly grand.

While in the Eastern markets, undersigned contracted for five hundred Chamber Suites of different lines Since January the first, we have sold for the Alamo Hotel 85 suites, The Barker House, 44 suites, The Glockner Sanitarium, 30 suits, which together with a number of other other large and small bills will run the aggregate up to more than two hundred suites Our experience and knowledge of the business and acquaintance in the market guarantee our purchases on the lowest possible basis, and it must be apparent to everybody that a firm that can buy and sell in such quantities can buy for 10, 15 and 25 dollars per suite less than the dealer who orders in small lots and who does not agree to dispose of any certain number of suites.

Everybody's Chance!

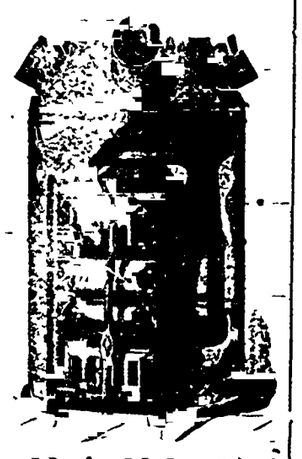

Every person who owns real estate in Colorado Springs has made money in the last thirty days, everyone who buys at present prices will make money Almost every day you hear of someone buying a piece of property and being immediately offered from $100 to $1000 for his bargain There are good reasons for this advance The building of the motor lines, the extension of the Burlington and the completion of the Pike's Peak railroad will give the city a boom, and all the croakers can't stop it Many people do not buy property because it requires more ready money than they have on hand, and they are thus barred out from receiving any of the benefits of the advance in prices But we have made such easy terms on our lots in our new South End addition that anyone can buy and pay for a pair of lots

Our new addition is just on the market, the prices are down to bed rock, and there is money in the lots to those who buy before prices are advanced We are selling good lots at from $85 to $100 each, on terms of $10 Cash and $5 a month thereafter on each lot These are the lowest prices and the easiest payments that are offered in the city You can buy corners in this addition if you buy now
We have a few more fine lots on South Cascade on monthly payments of $10 We offer these at last summer prices, and there is money in them
We have a fine assortment of Parish addition property at bottom prices
Do you know there is money in running a chicken farm or in raising vegetables for market? We have some fine garden tracts from $700 to $400.
We have a fine selection of good homes of 3 to 9 rooms in all parts of the city at $400 to $7,000 each on monthly payments of $15 to $50
You can make money by dealing with us No trouble to show goods.
